

Code2

September 17, 2023

```
[ ]: #prompt the user to enter the temperature in degrees fahrenheit temp_fahrenheit = input("Enter the patient's temperature (in degrees_ ↳Fahrenheit): ")

#check if the input can be converted to a float
try:
    temperature = float(temp_fahrenheit)

#use an if-else statement to check whether the temperature is greater than or_ ↳equal to 99.5
    if temperature >= 99.5:
        print("The patient has a high temperature.")
    else:
        print("The patient's temperature is normal.")

#error message for input that is not an integer
except ValueError:
    print("Error: Please enter a valid temperature(numeric value).")
```

```
[ ]:
```